What to Expect at Camp

We don't take lightly the trust you place in our team when you send your child to camp. Our priority is camper safety and well-being, always. Here's what your child can expect to find at Girl Scout camp:

- A culture of belonging and inclusion: we welcome all girls and gender-expansive youth who identify with the girl experience
- Cozy lodging and convenient facilities: While sleeping accommodations vary by camp, all properties house modern facilities, private shower stalls, and changing stations
- A screen-free environment that encourages growth and connection
- Trained and certified staff who meet or exceed industry standards

Why Girl Scout Camp

Kids need a place to test their strength, to take safe risks, and to find belonging as their most authentic self. Girl Scout camp is that place.

You want your child to be brave, resilient, curious, and compassionate. We want them to feel seen, valued, and respected—and to believe in their limitless potential.

Whether your camper is new to the outdoors or a seasoned trailblazer, our expert staff are here to deliver one-of-a-kind experiences at their pace, for their personality, and with their boundless potential in mind.

What Campers Will Gain

1.) Strong Sense of Self

2.) Healthy Relationships

3.) Challenge Seeking

4.) Positive Values

5.) Community Problem Solving

Experiences that Grow with You

Camp River Ranch

Where Curiosity Builds Confidence

Located just 30-miles from downtown Seattle in Carnation, Camp River Ranch provides a highly accessible gateway to outdoor exploration.

Camp Lyle McLeod

Where Community Takes Root

Located just outside Belfair, Camp Lyle McLeod proves that the destination is worth the journey—with a long, gravel road that delivers campers to a stunning, private lake-front camp.

Camp St. Albans

Where Camp Magic Sparks Joy

Located in Allyn, Camp St. Albans offers the quintessential place for kids to be kids and experience the magic of a classic summer camp.

Camp Robbinswold

Where High Adventure Builds Trailblazers

With one-mile of saltwater beachfront along Hood Canal and six miles of forest trails, Camp Robbinswold offers the premier destination for campers to test their limits in the outdoors.

Community Day Camps

Hosted by teams of dedicated, background-checked volunteers, community day and twilight camps are held at local parks, campgrounds, schools, and other public spaces throughout Western Washington. Pricing varies by camp and ranges from $100 to $275 for one week, Monday-Friday, of programming. Day camps generally run from 8:00 AM to 3:00 PM and twilight camps are held in the afternoon and early evening. Camps welcome new volunteers and offer camper discounts for volunteers!

I see multiple prices per session in your registration system. Can you explain the difference between your pricing tiers?

Girl Scouts of Western Washington offers a tiered pricing structure to keep our summer camps accessible while supporting their long-term sustainability.

Families simply select the price that best fits their budget. This choice is confidential and has no impact on your camper's experience.

Tier One: This is our traditional, council-subsidized rate, and the price you see reflected in this guide. Paying at this level represents the basic operating costs of summer camp.

Tier Two (Tier One + 45%): This rate represents the full cost of operating camp, including long-term maintenance and stewardship of our properties. Choosing this tier helps sustain our camps and programs for future generations. You will see this rate available in CampInTouch.

Financial Assistance: We understand that our Tier One price may still be out of reach for some families. Thanks to our generous community, financial assistance is available. Apply through our website.

Can my child attend more than one week or program?

We love returning campers! Each week and program offers a unique experience for campers to try new things and build confidence. Some families utilize our camp programs for childcare.

Can they attend with a sibling or a friend?

Yes! Campers wishing to be buddies must register for the same session and both request each other at registration.

Are your staff trained?

Girl Scout camps are led by highly-trained, supportive adults who are prepared to support campers through tough moments and their greatest achievements. Our staff are trained in first aid and CPR, emergency procedures, and behavior and group management—and specialized staff receive national certifications like American Red Cross Waterfront Lifeguard.
